Sport and Exercise Physicians are specialists in the management of sporting injuries and illnesses in the active population as well as exercise prescription in the management and prevention of chronic diseases such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease and osteoarthritis. All Sport and Exercise Physicians have experience in looking after elite athletes and teams and apply these principles to the management of all patients, whether they are recreational athletes, adolescent or disabled athletes, manual workers or those with or without chronic diseases simply wanting to safely manage their activity levels.

Sport and Exercise Clinics are considered “essential” services. Most of the conditions treated are neither urgent nor critical so many clinics are offering services by video consultation. Patients are finding this convenient and are surprised at how much can be achieved using digital technologies. Patients can still attend in person if this is considered important for their care. MBS rebates are being updated regularly, but some services may not qualify for rebates.
